THE JOY OF POSTCARD COLLECTING - REDUX

W.C. Allen Candy Company used a REO Speed Wagon to deliver their products in Portland.

Interesting and unusual postcards can make postcard collecting a very fun and fulfilling activity. The collecting experience is enhanced by the diversity and varying subjects that can be found on postcards. Knowing what types of cards can be found can help the postcard collector find enjoyment when they find cards that do their own talking. Postcards can give us the who, what, when and why of a particular topic or subject.

Some of my favorite topics for postcards include transportation. Vehicles used for advertising a business are particularly appealing.

Northwest Auto Company also used a REO Speed Wagon to deliver their products.

Tom Moore sold high grade cigars in Portland.

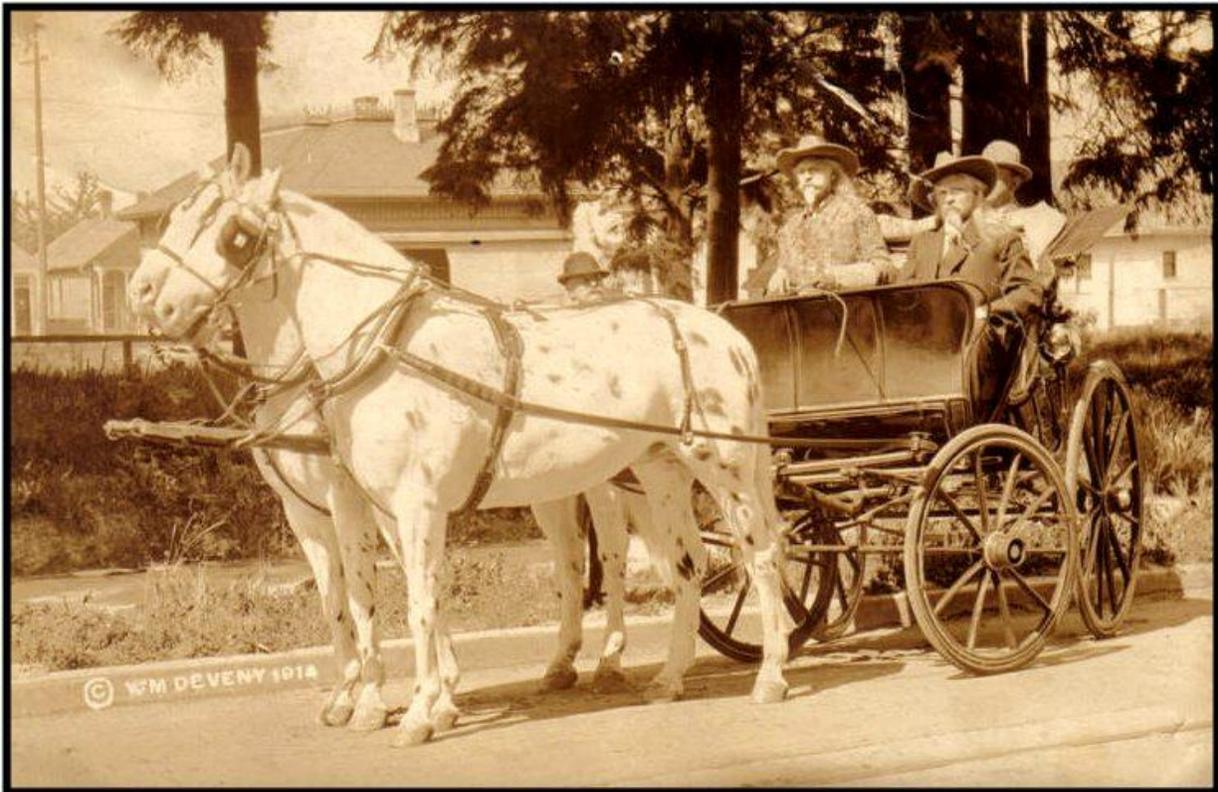

Palace Laundry at East 10th and Everett streets had several smart-looking trucks.

A driver for the Ira F. Powers Furniture Company made deliveries on a snowy day.

William DeVeney, who was Buffalo Bill's double, was a childhood friend of Buffalo Bill Cody. He was born in Nebraska in 1843 and moved to Portland in 1861. He filled in for Buffalo Bill on some of his western engagements. A Buffalo Bill buggy with a matched team like the one used in the show was secretly kept in Portland for such events.

John Bull greets Uncle Sam at the 1934 Rose Festival.
